48. P.L. 108-106; P.L. 108-287. This figure accounts for later rescissions of the IRRF.
53. Projections include CERP, ESF, IRRF, and ISFF. Projections assume that all appropriated funds not yet expired will be obligated and that all obligated funds will be expended. Projected rates of obligation and expenditure by quarter are based on historical obligation and expenditure rates in that respective quarter. The projected rate of obligation per quarter is equal to quarterly obligations divided by available appropriations (appropriations less obligations) as of the beginning of the respective quarter, averaged over the previous four years. The projected rate of expenditure is equal to quarterly expenditures divided by available obligations (obligations less expenditures) as of the beginning of the respective quarter, averaged over the previous four years.

85. IRMS, MNC-I Quarterly Report, 10/12/2009. IRMS does not have data for the “Hero Payments” or “Temporary Contract Guards for Critical Infrastructure” project categories.
86. OSD, response to SIGIR data call, 10/2/2009.
87. OSD, response to SIGIR data call, 10/12/2009. Obligation and expenditure data from IRMS does not match the OSD quarterly expenditure report. IRMS has been identified by DoS OIG and SIGIR as unreliable, but it is the only source available for historical obligation and expenditure data by project category. OSD, response to SIGIR data call, 10/2/2009. OSD is only able to provide data from the current fiscal year appropriation.
88. House Appropriations Committee Report 111–230, “Department of Defense Appropriations Bill, 2010,” 7/24/2009, pp. 6–7, 349–350. The “thorough review of CERP, its purpose, use and scope,” should include “a review and explanation of the process by which CERP budget requests are generated and justified; a review of the practice of obligating a significant amount of CERP funding in the last quarter of the fiscal year; a review of existing management and oversight of CERP funds by the Department of the Army and CENTCOM that includes an assessment of whether there are sufficient, appropriately trained personnel to oversee this program at both the department level and in the area of operations,” as well as other requirements.

89. Letter from Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff, to Chairman, Committee on Armed Services, United States Senate, 9/30/2009.

91. In addition to the $354 million in unexpended CERP, as of December 30, 2009, a portion of the $435 million appropriated to the CERP by P.L. 111-32 will be allocated to Iraq.

DFAS data provided by OSD is preliminary for the quarter ending September 30, 2009. OSD does not report CERP allocation, obligation, and expenditure data for project categories on a quarterly basis for all fiscal year appropriations; CERP allocation, obligation, and expenditure data is pulled from IRMS for project category analysis, and therefore top-line totals here may not match values found in the Funding Uses subsection of this Report. U.S. Embassy-Baghdad did not provide updated allocation, obligation, and expenditure data for the Democracy and Civil Society, Iraqi Refugees (Jordan), and Regime Crimes Liaison Office sectors; values for these sectors are carried over from the previous quarter.

A moment frame is a box-shaped frame with special moment connections or joints that help in the resistance of wind or earthquake conditions. A building faces two cumulative forces: wind pressure—the same pressure applied to a person feeling similar inertia when standing on a train that takes off quickly—shaken from the feet up. And, importantly in Iraq, moment would also occur in a lateral explosion off quickly—shaken from the feet up. And, importantly in Iraq, moment would also occur in a lateral explosion.
